

Feed Me

The dish on Long Island's restaurant and food scene

Serena Williams' Huntington serve

Tuesday September 1, 2009 12:36 PM By Joan Reminick

Friday night, after throwing out the first pitch at the new Yankee Stadium in the Yankees vs. White Sox game, tennis star Serena Williams headed out to the newly opened Porto Vivo in Huntington. There, Williams, her manager and her sister Isha had dinner with the restaurant's co-owners, Joy Mangano (of Home Shopping Network fame) and Philipp Seipelt, along with Seipelt's fiancée, Christie Mangano.

So, what does a tennis great eat the week before the U.S. Open? Williams had steamed littleneck clams and grilled branzino, washed down with nothing more intoxicating than water. The wine cellar would have to wait.

Photo: From left, Joy Mangano, Serena Williams and Philipp Seipelt. (Porto Vivo Photo / Aug. 28)

add a comment + share email print

Tags: Serena Williams, U.S. Open, Yankees, White Sox, Porto Vivo, Huntington, Joy Mangano